STATEMENT OF WILLIAM J. GRAVER

16 October 1992

When the Vietnam War came to an end, the Agency had virtually no [redacted] in Laos. The oppressive exercise of authority by the Communist regime made it very difficult to obtain information of any sort from inside Laos, and I personally have no recollection of reports of sightings of US POWs in that country [redacted]

[redacted] But this did not mean that I had ruled out the possibility that US POWs were being held by the Lao,
