		"THE COAST GUARD LINKS BRITISH AND FRENCH RAILROADS: Out of the massive jaws of a U.S. Coast Guard-manned LST (landing ship, tanks) rolls a string of railroad cars, loaded with vital war supplies in ENgland and delivered in France. The Coast Guard-manned ship ferries rolling stock for a British port to a French beach railhead, forming a floating link between the railroads of the two countries. Priceless hours, unloading and reloading, are saved by a running packed cars into the track-equipped tank deck of the LST and carrying them across the English Channel to roll down a tracked tamp onto French rails, From this point, trainloads of war equipment and a supplies move smoothly and swift off to the fighting fronts."
