Scope & Content: This series contains records relating to the drafting and implementation of a series of international humanitarian treaties known as the Geneva Conventions. The first agreement of August 22, 1864, is commonly referred to as the "Treaty of the Red Cross." The purpose of that treaty was to relieve the suffering of sick and wounded members of field armies. An 1868 convention, while not ratified, expanded the earlier agreement to include naval warfare. Another conference was held in 1906 at Geneva, at which the conventions were revised; these were then adopted by the Hague Peace Conference of 1907. In 1929 the conventions, signed by 47 nations, were widened to include provisions to improve the lot of prisoners of war. The latest convention, in 1949, was ratified by 61 countries, including the United States.

The bulk of this series relates to the Geneva Conventions of 1949. Its four articles covered the amelioration of conditions of the wounded and sick in the armed forces, including those in the field and those shipwrecked at sea (Articles I and II); the treatment of prisoners of war (III); and the treatment and legal status of noncombatants in wartime (IV). Records include summaries and minutes of plenary meetings of participating governments, reports and correspondence related to committees tasked with revising or implementing the provisions of the various Conventions, and draft copies of resolutions, statues and rules of procedures.

Also included in the records is documentation of international conferences of the Red Cross and the Red Cross's efforts to implement the Conventions' provisions. In signing the Conventions, States pledged themselves to diffuse their texts. In most countries, it was the National Red Cross Societies, very often assisted by the International Committee of the Red Cross (ICRC), which made the greatest effort. Red Cross Societies cooperated with local civil defense agencies by publishing materials relating to international law, distributing handbooks or the full text of the Conventions to troops, and organizing courses and lectures on the main provisions of the Conventions including, treatment of prisoners of war and civilian protection. For their part, the ICRC also published commentary on the Geneva Conventions and helped the States to establish legislation implementing the Conventions.

Some of the records are written in French, but for the most part, include English translations.

Agency History: The Legal Adviser is the principal adviser to the Secretary of State and, through the Secretary, to the President on all matters of international law arising in the conduct of United States foreign relations. The Legal Adviser also provides general legal advice and services to the Secretary and other officials of the Department on matters with which the Department and overseas posts are concerned.

Subject:	Re: 306-63A0190

Many thanks Janet. We have the 258 (or at least a copy), you have the transfer documentation---all we need are the records, which I'm still trying to find!!!

Dick

>>> Janet Kennelly 03/29/05 11:11AM >>> Dick:

According to the NARS 5 history data base, all the boxes on your list transferred to NARA in August 1996. I tried to find the SF 258 but came up empty-handed.

Title: BRIEFING BOOKS GMD/Record Type: Textual Records RecordType/Genre: Report RecordType/Genre: Biography RecordType/Genre: Correspondence RecordType/Genre: Summary Incl Start Date: 1958 a Incl End Date: 1976 a Info Start Date: Info End Date: Bulk Dates: 1966-1976 Scope & Content: This series consists of briefing books created for and used by the President, Vice-President, First Ladies, Secretary, Deputy, and Under Secretaries of State, and other leading political personnel in preparation for official State visits, functions, or diplomatic consultations. The purpose of the books varied from supplying schedule and itinerary information for foreign travel or visits, to background papers and talking points with foreign Heads of State, to biographic sketches and supplemental information describing the culture, roles of women, and customs of a foreign country. Many of the first boxes in the series relate to the US role and participation in Vietnam, as well as the peace initiatives and negotiations. The balance of the series contains records relating to US relations with the former Soviet Union, Japan, China, and the countries of Europe, the Middle East, Africa, and South and Central Americas.

There also exist diplomatic correspondence; reports and outlines of NATO Ministerial Meetings, and meetings of the Organization of American States (OAS); follow-up reports of official visits with foreign Heads of State and attendance at international conferences; summaries of the Secretary of State's appearances before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee (SFRC); press briefings; and congratulatory messages sent to Henry Kissinger upon his nomination and appointment as Secretary of State and recipient of the Nobel Peace Prize.

Agency History: The Executive Secretariat was established in 1947 to combine several disparate staffs providing support to the Secretary of State into one organization. The office assures the prompt and orderly staffing of policy problems requiring the attention of the Secretary, the Under Secretaries and the Deputy Under Secretaries; the coordination of material presented to them; and the implementation of decisions made by them. It serves as the main point of contact with other U.S. Government agencies at the highest levels and assists in coordinating the transition between Presidential administrations.

GMD/Record Type: Textual Records

Incl End Date: 1976 |a

Info Start Date:

Info End Date:

Bulk Dates: 1966-1976

Scope & Content: This series consists of briefing books created for and used by the President; Vice-President; First Ladies; Secretary, Deputy, and Under Secretaries of State; and other leading political personnel in preparation for official State visits, functions, or diplomatic consultations. The purposes of the books varied from supplying schedule and itinerary information for foreign travel or visits to background papers and talking points with foreign Heads of State, biographic sketches, and supplemental information describing the culture, roles of women, and customs of a foreign country. Many of the first boxes in the series relate to the US role and participation in Vietnam, as well as the peace initiatives and negotiations. The balance of the series contains records relating to US relations with the former Soviet Union, Japan, China, and the countries of Europe, the Middle East, Africa, and South and Central Americas.

There also exist diplomatic correspondence; reports and outlines of NATO Ministerial Meetings and meetings of the Organization of American States (OAS); follow-up reports on official visits with foreign Heads of State and attendance at international conferences; summaries of the Secretary of State's appearances before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee (SFRC); press briefings; and congratulatory messages sent to Henry Kissinger upon his nomination and appointment as Secretary of State and recipient of the Nobel Peace Prize.

Agency History: The Executive Secretariat was established in 1947 to combine several disparate staffs providing support to the Secretary of State into one organization. The office assures the prompt and orderly staffing of policy problems requiring the attention of the Secretary, the Under Secretaries and the Deputy Under Secretaries; the coordination of material presented to them, and the implementation of decisions made by them. It serves as the main point of contact with other U.S. Government agencies at the highest levels and assists in coordinating the transition between Presidential administrations.

Scope & Content: This series consists of memorandums, letters, reports and telegrams collected or created by the Policy Planning Council and its predecessor organization, the Policy Planning Staff, from 1959-1970. The records relate primarily to the SALT

I (Strategic Arms Limitation Talks) negotiations between the United States and the Soviet Union during 1969-1970. There are also records, however, relating to the Cuban Missile Crisis of 1962, and the continued U-2 reconnaissance flights over Cuba. There are also records relating to the British Labor Party's views regarding Britain's nuclear capabilities in the 1960s; and records relating to the security of West Germany during the late 1960s.

Agency History: The Policy Planning Staff (S/P) was created on May 5,1947, by Secretary of State George C. Marshall. Marshall called upon George F. Kennan to set up the organization. The objective of the creation was to establish what amounted to an in-house think tank devoted to long-term planning.

In 1961, the Policy Planning Staff (S/P) was renamed the Policy Planning Council (S/PC). In that same year, President Kennedy abolished the National Security Council's Operations Coordinating Board, which had monitored the implementation of policy, and replaced it with a newly created Interagency Planning Group chaired by the Chairman of the Policy Planning Council (S/PC).

In 1969, President Nixon reconstituted S/PC as the Planning Coordination Staff (S/PC). At that time, the S/PC lost most of its power and effectiveness as most significant planning and policy decisions were made in the National Security Council (NSC). When Henry Kissinger became Secretary of State in 1973, however, he brought some of his NSC staff with him and placed them in S/PC, thus rejuvenating S/PC's importance. In February 1974, the name was changed back to the Policy Planning Staff (S/P). In December 1982, the name was once again changed to the Policy Planning Council (S/PC) only to revert back to Policy Planning Staff (S/P) in December 1987.

consular capacity until a 1792 act of Congress set up an independent consular service. The foundations for the present Foreign Service were laid by an act of March 1, 1855 (10 Stat. 619), which defined the duties and fixed the pay for the diplomatic and consular services. From time to time the two services were reorganized by legislation and by Executive order and, by the Rogers Act of May 24, 1924 (43 Stat. 140), they were combined into a single Foreign Service. American diplomatic and consular posts have been established or discontinued as the interests of the Nation have dictated. As of 1990 there were 144 American embassies, 9 missions, 71 consulates general, 26 consulates, 1 branch office, and 23 consular agencies throughout the world.

From time to time the two services were reorganized by legislation and by Executive order and, by the Rogers Act of May 24, 1924 (43 Stat. 140), they were combined into a single Foreign Service. American diplomatic and consular posts have been established or discontinued as the interests of the Nation have dictated. As of 1990 there were 144 American embassies, 9 missions, 71 consulates general, 26 consulates, 1 branch office, and 23 consular agencies throughout the world.

lot file from the United States Embassy in Saigon, South Vietnam (now Ho Chi Minh City, Vietnam). Scope & Content: These files document the efforts made in the retrieval of Prisoners of War (POW) and in resolution of the status of those Missing in Action (MIA). This includes POW/MIAs from military actions that occurred prior to the war in Vietnam (the Korean War for example). These files deal with military and civilian personnel, private citizens, and others who were held or believed to be held by the government of the Democratic Republic of Vietnam, the National Liberation Front (in the Republic of Vietnam), the Pathet Lao and the Khmer Rouge. Some mention is made in these records of POW/MIA concerns that arose out of the Arab-Israeli wars of the period. In addition to the return of the POWs these records relate to the debriefings of returnees and people who had knowledge of the existence or knew the whereabouts of POW/MIAs. These records also document efforts made by the Department of State, the Armed Forces and private citizens to secure the release of those held in South East Asia. Because of the broad based involvement in this issue, documents within these files consist of those generated by multiple civilian agencies of the Federal Government, the four branches of the Armed Forces, the Office of the Secretary of Defense, State governments, and correspondence from various private institutions as well as individual citizens. In addition to documents these records contain press and newspaper clippings, audio tapes, and magazines.

Agency History: Department of Human Rights and Humanitarian Affairs has principal responsibility in the Department of State for policy counsel at decision-making levels on matters relating to human rights and humanitarian affairs in the conduct of U.S. foreign policy. By statute (Pub. L. 95-105, August 17, 1977, 91 Stat. 846), its responsibilities also embrace matters relating to refugees (including the Department's review of asylum requests), prisoners of war, and members of the U.S. Armed Forces missing in action. The responsibility of the United States to speak out on behalf of international human rights and standards was formalized in the early 1970's. In 1976 Congress enacted legislation creating a Coordinator of Human Rights in the U.S. Department of State, a position later upgraded to Assistant Secretary. In 1994 the Bureau of Human Rights and Humanitarian Affairs was reorganized and renamed as the Bureau of Democracy, Human Rights, and Labor, reflecting both a broader sweep and a more focused approach to the interlocking issues of human rights, workers rights, and democracy.

Arrangement: Arranged in two sub-series: 1) 1966-1977, arranged variously by subject and thereunder chronologically by year, and 2) 1974-1979, arranged alphabetically by type of record and/or by subject and thereunder chronologically by year.

Scope & Content: This series consists primarily of telegrams relating to peace negotiations between the United States and North Vietnam from May 1968 to late July 1969. At the beginning of May 1968, representatives of the U.S. and North Vietnam agreed to meet in Paris to begin peace talks. W. Averell Harriman and Cyrus Vance initially served as the chief and deputy chief negotiator, respectively, for the U.S. In January 1969, the U.S. Ambassador to Saigon, Henry Cabot Lodge, and Lawrence Walsh, replaced Harriman and Vance, respectively, as chief and deputy negotiator. At the same time, the U.S. and North Vietnam agreed to expanded talks, which included representatives of South Vietnam and the National Liberation Front. These developments and others are documented in the records, which consist of telegrams sent to the U.S. delegation in Paris from the State Department in Washington (TODEL telegrams) and telegrams sent by the Paris delegation to State headquarters (DELTO telegrams). Subjects covered in the telegrams include aerial reconnaisance, the cessation of bombing by the U.S., coalition governments, a demilitarized zone, government relations, mutual withdrawal, peace plans and proposals, prisoners of war, reduction of violence, and reunification. Also included is a 1969 chronology of the Paris talks, which provides a summary of the plenary meetings by date.

This series also includes several other uniquely-named categories of telegrams with special captions that limited the distribution of the telegrams to just a few individuals. "Maria" telegrams document French activities from 1966 to 1968 and relate to such subjects as French arms shipments to the Middle East, French relations with West Germany and the Soviet Union, French military facilities available to the United States in time of peace and war, and French policies toward NATO. "Cedar" and "Sandstorm" telegrams relate to Middle East issues in 1971 and 1972. Topics in the "Cedar" telegrams include Jordanian concerns about Jerusalem, Soviet views on the Suez opening, communications from Anwar Sadat to President Nixon, and meetings between the U.S. and Israel. "Sandstorm" telegrams further document the Middle East situation and include concerns about Palestinian refugees and proposed communication between Israel and Jordan.

Arrangement: Arranged by type of telegram, thereunder numerically by telegram number.

Function &amp; Use : These records were created, compiled, and maintained by the Executive Secretariat in the course of receiving and distributing information needed by State officials to respond to ongoing foreign policy developments. The uniquely-named categories and "NODIS," "EXDIS," and "Eyes Only" special captions reflected the sensitivity of the information in the telegrams, which provided a daily means of communication for reporting situations in the field and receiving instructions from Washington.

Re: NJ-059-86-3

To: Director, NIR

This offer of records consists of various lot files of offices of the Bureau of Far Eastern Affairs, for the years 1951-58, that were suggested for accessioning by NNFD. They include records of the Deputy Assistant Secretary for Far Eastern Economic Affairs, the Bureau and its various Offices, Officer-in-Charge of Malayan Affairs, and Vietnam Desk Officer.

These files are similar to other geographical area lot files accessioned by NARA and are obviously worthy of archival retention. They supplement the central correspondence files of the Department and supplement or continue records of the Bureau of Far Eastern Affairs, 1940-58, accessioned by NARA under Job No. NC3-59-84-1. I recommend that these records be accessioned by NARA.

The records were reviewed and the 6710A's were prepared by Dale Whitaker, NND, while on training in NIR.
